The idea of having a quality, year-round community theatre is the dream of all of the people who have been involved in CentreStage since its beginning in 1984.

The theatre's history is well documented on its web site. You will find a listing of all of the productions that have graced our stage during that time. Our print archives contain the names of all those associated with the various productions and we also have an extensive pictorial record and memorabilia. Extensive as all this is, it is but the 'tip of the iceberg' when it comes to the many, many people who have helped over the years.

Since its inception, CentreStage has provided the Valley with quality entertainment and an outlet for the creative talents of its citizens. As a result, the theatre has garnered a large and dedicated following among the members of the theatre-going public.

These dedicated patrons have "spread the word" about this gem in the heart of downtown Kentville and the results have been noticeable in our attendance figures. This patronage has inspired and energized those charged with the task of "running" the theatre to greater efforts to improve upon this wonderful gift.

We invite all of our patrons and friends to consider CentreStage when deciding upon where they will spend their charitable dollars each year. We also hope that when planning the disposition of their estates that they will consider a legacy to CentreStage for its continued support and growth.

The theatre always welcomes new faces and fresh talent; so, why not take a moment to join the CentreStage Theatre Society. It's one of those purchases that you'll never regret.

It's a Wonderful Life

This theatre has given many people a place to develop and grow as actors and as people.

Being a part of a play can change you, sometimes. Surprises await those who remain alert, sensitive, and open.

You spend about three months in close company with people, some of whom you have just met. You may be a seasoned veteran or a novice but by opening night you have changed. You have become the character you portray and more importantly you have learned to listen, to stay in character, and to respond, regardless of what flubs or miscues that evening's performance sends your way.

You learn to stay alert, to have the whole story in your head so you can rescue yourself and others if need be. You learn to master your fear and channel that adrenaline rush, making it work to energize yourself and the others so that the audience is entertained: the whole point of the exercise.

Being a part of this theatre opens so many opportunities to anyone who has the enthusiasm, dedication, and the love needed to see, to respond, and to nurture the best in other and the best in oneself.

Being a member in a first step in the journey.

All the world is a stage!

Why not come and be a part of our world.

Come, play on our stage!
